Farberallye XLI

October 19-21, 2018 Hancock, MA

Farberallye XLI was held on the weekend of October 19 at Jiminy Peak Mountain Resort in Hancock, Mass. This year's rallye was a tri-section event with Hudson Mohawk, Northern New England Stars, and hosted by the Minuteman section. Even as a tri-section event, Farberallye was dominated by members of the Minuteman and NE Stars Sections. Once again, members came together for a Friday night reception, breakfasts on Saturday & Sunday, with a rallye and reception on Saturday. During the day on Saturday, members either participated in a time and distance rallye, a quiz rallye, or combined. Prizes were awarded during the reception on Saturday night. Several previous year's 1st and 2nd place winners were unseated in both T/D and Quiz rallyes. Sunday we had a guided tour of Hancock Shaker Village and headed back out on the roads home.

Formula 1 Abu Dhabi Grand Prix November 23rd – 25th

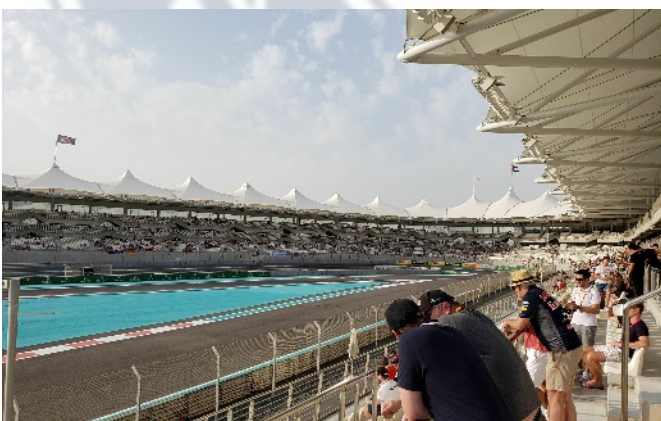

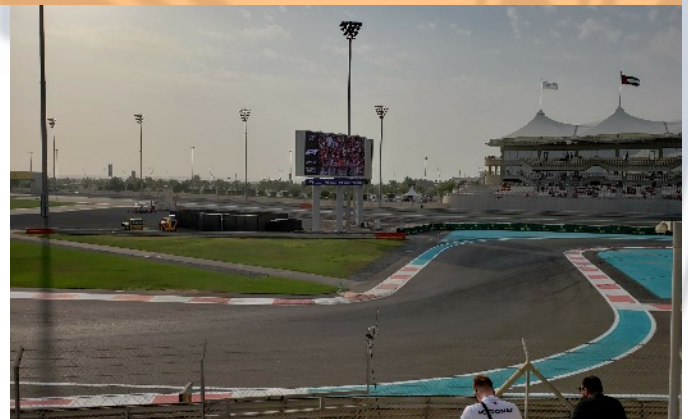

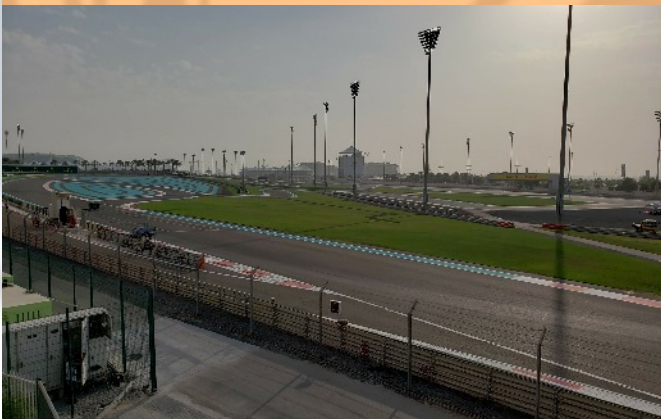

Since 2014, my wife and I have been attending Formula 1 Races in person as well as watching all the action on television. For the first 3 years, we attended the Canadian Grand Prix in Montreal until my wife told me that we had to go somewhere different in 2017. "Yes dear."

In July of 2017, we jumped over the pond and attended the British Grand Prix at Silverstone, which was a brilliant experience. Then, another opportunity came up for the US Grand Prix in the fall of 2017, so we flew to Austin as well. Another wonderful experience and the exchange rate.....well, there wasn't one. For 2018, we decided on the Abu Dhabi Grand Prix in November.

Abu Dhabi was an easy choice to make since we were already planning a trip to Thailand to visit my wife's family and friends in Bangkok. It was ideal to combine going to Thailand and then a stop in Abu Dhabi on our return back to Boston. Going over to Bangkok, it was a 12 hour flight to Dubai and after connecting, another 6.5 to Thailand. That's a long time to travel, but not as long as the return since we will be fighting against the jet stream going home. From Bangkok to Dubai, it was at least 7.5 hours, and then a 2-hour bus ride to Abu Dhabi. Emirates Airlines has complimentary bus service from Dubai to Abu Dhabi, so it was an easy transfer. After the race, a bus ride back to Dubai Airport and then 14 hours in coach. Yuck, but it was worth it.

Before going to the United Arab Emirates, you should do your research on customs and what you are allowed to bring in to the country, including everyday things you wouldn't give a 2nd thought to. Some prescription and over-the-counter medicines are prohibited in the UAE, including Tylenol.... That probably wouldn't be an issue since you need a license to drink alcohol unless you are in a designated area, so you probably won't need the Tylenol anyway. 😊

Every race weekend includes 3 Free Practice Sessions that last an average of 1.5 hours where the teams set up their cars and tires for the track. Then there is a Qualifying session to determine each drivers starting grid placement. On Sunday is the race. This was the case for Abu Dhabi as well. So what do you do when they aren't practicing, qualifying, or racing? Continued on the next page.....

Included with our weekend tickets were passes to Ferrari World, Warner Brothers World, and an Abu Dhabi waterpark on Yas Island, which is where the Yas Marina Circuit is located. We skipped the waterpark due to logistics and having to cart wet clothes around after, but we did take part in the experience of Ferrari World and Warner Brothers World.

Even though Ferrari is considered the enemy to Mercedes-Benz AMG Petronas, there is still respect and admiration for the manufacturer. Ferrari World had old cars, new cars, and racecars on display. You can test your ability to change an F1 tire in seconds, or for some we saw, in minutes. But, the biggest draw were two crazy looking roller-coasters, and I like roller-coasters...or at least I used to. One had a series of huge loops and twists, and the other, was dubbed the “World’s Fastest Roller-coaster” going over 200 MPH! Oh boy, let’s try that one.

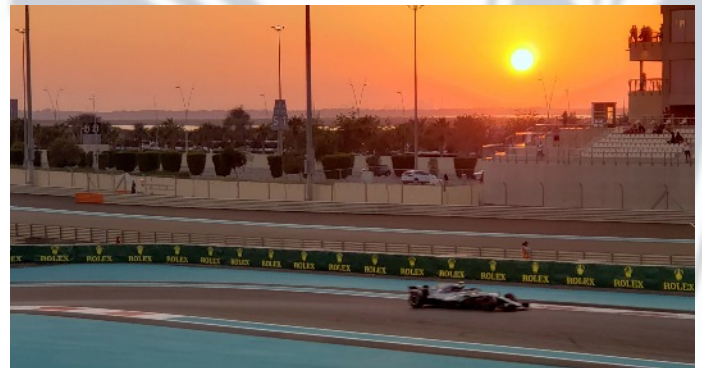

Before getting on the roller coaster, everything had to be removed from your pockets and you were required to wear goggles. Once you get into the coaster, you are strapped in just like an F1 driver and you can’t move. “Oh $&!#, is it too late to get out?” We start creeping forward and bam, I felt like I was in a jet fighter taking off from an aircraft carrier. At first my screaming was out of pure exhilaration but soon realized it was from pure fear! We were shooting across the tracks, banks, up, down, up down, all at over 200 mph. It wasn’t until the end when we were really shooting up and down that I thought the people behind me were going to learn what I had for breakfast 2 hours ago and then we slammed to a slow 15 mph. Oh man, what was I thinking. I am NOT 15 years old anymore.

If I had looked into a mirror, I can only imagine what kind of ghost I must have looked like. Immediately we got out, and I had to sit for at least 20 minutes before I felt good enough to walk again. I’m not really sure that I like roller-coasters anymore.....

The rest of the race weekend was phenomenal with Lewis Hamilton of the Mercedes-Benz AMG Petronas Factory Team winning the race. Included are some pictures of highlights from the race weekend.
